Overview

Supporting National Girls in Baseball Week can be as simple as sharing a social media post about a player, coach, umpire, administrator or volunteer that you'd like to thank, or as elaborate as hosting your own National Girls in Baseball Week event. The tools in this guide will help you create and promote NGBW content to recognize the special girls and women in your community.

Don't know where to get started? Don't worry! There are lots of ways you can participate – pick and choose whatever works for you!

Planning Your Own Event

From community festivals, girls-only baseball clinics to special games, panel talks, and media features, there are countless ways to celebrate the power of girls in the game. Here's are some ways you can get involved:

- Choose Your Format: Events can be in-person or virtual and range from grassroots clinics to high-performance showcases.
- Engage Local Partners: Collaborate with PSOs, clubs, schools, or community centers.
- Promote Your Event: Share photos, stories, and shoutouts using #NGBW on social media. Don't forget to message your local media and municipal government to amplify your efforts — tools and templates are provided below.

Featured Initiatives

A full list of national, provincial and local events can be found on the National Events Calendar. If you do not see your event, contact info can be found on page 13.

Event & Campaign Ideas

Schools

- Invite a local female baseball player/coach to speak at an assembly or classroom Q&A.
- Run a poster contest for students to depict girls in baseball, with the winners shared online.
- Set up a Baseball5 activity day for all-girls teams or physical education classes.
- Include girls in baseball stories in morning announcements or school newsletters.
- Have a jersey day and classroom discussion on women in baseball/sport

Local Associations

- Feature a “Girl of the Game” during every game that week, and post her NGBW profile on social media (page 7)
- Invite alumni to attend / host a Q&A
- Host a screening (with permission) of See Her Be Her
- Host a clinic, a “bring a friend” day or any other girls-only event
- Photo Booth at a Park or Festival: Create a DIY backdrop with baseball gear and a sign that says “I Play Because...” and capture community stories.

Community Partners

- Launch a “Girls in Baseball Week Challenge” one socials with daily themes (e.g., Monday = Share a Memory, Tuesday = Shout Out a Mentor).
- Create a social media takeover by a youth player or local coach during NGBW.
- Run a donation drive for used gear that can be distributed to new girls’ teams forming in your area.
- Girls in Baseball Art Wall: Set up an art station at a community center where kids can draw what baseball means to them. Post the artwork all week.
- Sidewalk Chalk Shoutouts: Host a sidewalk art session outside a local field or center where girls write messages like “Girls Belong in Baseball.”

Letter to Your Mayor

Encourage your mayor or local official to recognize National Girls in Baseball Week by issuing a proclamation. A sample letter is included below:

Subject: Celebrate National Girls in Baseball Week in [Your City]

Dear Mayor [Name],

From June 27th - July 4th, 2026, communities across the country will be celebrating National Girls in Baseball Week - the first of its kind in Canada. With events happening in every province, this week is all about recognizing the incredible impact that girls and women have in baseball as players, coaches, officials, and leaders.

We'd love for [City/Town Name] to get involved by issuing a proclamation or joining us for a photo opportunity. It's a great way to show support for gender equity in sport and highlight local athletes and volunteers who are making a difference.

Baseball Canada is working closely with Provincial Sport Organizations and community groups to make this a truly national celebration. {Provide examples of anything going on in your Province}.

We've included a draft proclamation and would be happy to provide more info or help coordinate a local event.

Thank you very much for your support,

[Your Name]
